Safety and Risk Management Resources for Building Services Contractors

Building services contractors engage in a number of activities inside and outside of client facilities, including janitorial services, office cleaning and floor waxing. As more companies outsource these services, this business has become one of the fastest-growing service industries, but not without risk. For the building service contractor, exposures can include workplace injuries; property damage; third-party slips, trips and falls; and security concerns (including key controls).

Having access to readily available and dependable information is why Travelers has developed industry-specific TravSources, essential collections of valuable resources that focus on exposures businesses face.

Why Building Services Contractors TravSources?

The Building Services Contractors TravSources focuses on key exposures that building services contractors contend with on a daily basis. TravSources, available exclusively for Travelers policyholders and their agents on the Travelers Web site, contain risk management guides, sample safety programs, technical bulletins and interactive tools designed to assist businesses in managing their risk management needs.

Some sample resources from the Building Services Contractors TravSources include:

- > Closing Time Inspections Can Help Avoid Large Loss
- > Hearing Protection
- > Premises Security
- > Spanish Translator

- > Subcontractor Selection Overview
